Brief History

The United States of America formally entered World War I on April 6, 1917, two days after the U.S. Senate voted 82 to 6 to declare war against Germany and the U.S. House of Representatives endorsed the declaration by a vote of 373 to 50. “There was no part of the country which more willingly acceded to the martial needs of time than McLean County” (McLean County, Illinois, in the World War, 1917-1918, p.3).

Immediately after war was declared, the Bloomington, recruiting station was busy. Hundreds of young men had received their preliminary military training before the national draft law was inaugurated. An additional 675 faculty, students, and alumni from Illinois State Normal University also answered the call of duty. By war’s end, more than 5,000 McLean County men had served and more than 150 had died.

Moreover, at least 35 McLean County women, plus eight women from ISNU, served as Army nurses at U.S. military bases and overseas in Europe during the war. On the home front, McLean County citizens raised more than $11 million in the Liberty Loan drives; physicians, surgeons, and nurses worked at the front and in stateside hospitals; the local Red Cross and Y.M.C.A. raised funds and materials; money was raised for various relief organizations and humanitarian projects; and women and girls worked unselfishly in various capacities.

Scope

The World War I Collection is divided into five sections, organized from general to specific as documents relate to McLean County. The Liberty Loan Campaign was national, so this section includes that information but focuses on efforts in McLean County, such as the record books of contributions of local residents and the officers of the local organization (Folder A2). The second section includes other home front efforts.

The third category includes publications about local efforts and service personnel, booklets servicemen received from the War Department, as well as postcard booklets and other guidebooks which servicemen brought home from Europe.

Documents relating to service personnel are in two major sections: General and Specific Personnel. Folders with induction records, exemption board records, and miscellaneous correspondence contain such documents about various individuals, usually when there is only one item on a person. Multiple documents about an individual are filed in the last section, labeled by the individual. These folders include a variety of materials: letters written to family at home, military documents, biographical information written by the individual or taken during personal interviews. Whenever possible, each individual folder contains an obituary.
